The Saint Georges Hotel was built in 1964 on the site of Queen Hall where Henry Wood started the original Promenade concerts, now the BBC Proms, in one of the most exclusive areas of London on the corner of Langham Place and Regent Street, adjacent to All Souls Church.

This 4 star hotel has recently undergone refurbishment and now features 86 well appointed bedrooms and suites with complimentary high-speed Internet access, modern-day amenities and excellent views of London. There is an Executive Floor, 2 modern versatile meeting rooms and also the Heights Restaurant, Bar and Lounge on the 15th floor, offering modern European Cuisine and excellent service.

The Saint Georges Hotel offers 86 well appointed bedrooms designed in contemporary style and, as the bedrooms begin on the 9th floor all are assured some of the best views of London.

With a choice of smoking or non smoking, each of the spacious bedrooms comes with a great range of convenient facilities such as large bath/shower with complimentary toiletries, satellite TV & library of free in room movies, complimentary hospitality tray, individual air conditioning, hairdryer, desks, direct dial digital telephone with voice mail, unlimited high-speed internet access, minibar, 24-hour room service, double-glazed windows.

The majority of rooms have king size beds, ironing centres with trouser press and safe. Guests have the opportunity to upgrade to distinctively designed Executive rooms.
